The Post-War Years

After the war, the Ovid underwent a number of changes and improvements. In 1947, the aircraft was redesigned with a more powerful engine and a larger cabin. This new version was designated the Model 18, and it remained in production until 1969.

The Model 18 was a popular choice for corporate and government customers, and it was also used by the U.S. Air Force as a trainer and transport aircraft.
