

Glasgow Girl: Laughable True Stories of Her Tragic Dating Life

I'm a Glasgow girl, and I'm here to tell you that dating in this city is a special kind of hell. I've been on more bad dates than I can count, and I've got the stories to prove it.

I've been stood up, ghosted, and even had a guy tell me that I was "too fat" for him. But I've also had some great dates, and I've learned a lot about myself and what I'm looking for in a partner.

So, if you're a Glasgow girl who's looking for love, or if you're just looking for a good laugh, then read on. I've got some stories that will make you cringe, laugh, and maybe even cry.

The Time I Got Stood Up

I met him on Tinder, and he seemed like a really nice guy. We chatted for a few days, and then we decided to meet up for a drink. I was excited, but also nervous. I didn't want to get my hopes up, but I couldn't help but think that this could be the start of something special.

I got to the bar early, and I ordered a drink. I sat down at a table and waited for him to arrive. And I waited. And I waited. An hour later, he still hadn't shown up. I tried texting him, but he didn't respond. I felt like an idiot. I had been stood up.

I was so embarrassed and humiliated. I couldn't believe that someone would actually do that to me. I felt like I had been punched in the stomach. I just wanted to go home and cry.

But then I thought about it, and I realized that I was better off without him. He was obviously not a very nice guy, and I didn't want to waste my time on him. I finished my drink and left the bar. I held my head high and told myself that I was strong. I would not let this one guy ruin my day.

The Time I Got Ghosted

I met him at a party, and we hit it off right away. We talked for hours, and we laughed and joked. I felt like I had known him for years. I was so excited about the possibility of seeing him again.

We exchanged numbers, and we started texting each other. We talked every day, and we even went on a few dates. I thought things were going really well. But then, one day, he just stopped texting me. I didn't know what I had done wrong. I tried texting him, but he didn't respond. I felt like I was going crazy.

I didn't know what to do. I was so confused and hurt. I couldn't believe that he would just disappear like that. I felt like I had been ghosted.

I was so upset. I couldn't eat or sleep. I just wanted to know what I had done wrong. But I never got an answer. He just vanished into thin air.

I eventually got over him, but it took me a long time. I learned that ghosting is a cowardly way to end a relationship. If you're not interested in someone anymore, then just tell them. Don't just disappear.

The Time I Was Told I Was "Too Fat"

I met him online, and we had been chatting for a few weeks. We seemed to have a lot in common, and I was excited to meet him in person.

We met for coffee, and things were going really well. We talked for hours, and I felt like I was really getting to know him. But then, he said something that made me want to crawl into a hole and die.

He looked at me and said, "You're really pretty, but you're a bit too fat for me."

I was so shocked and hurt. I couldn't believe that he would say something so rude and insensitive. I felt like I wanted to cry.

I didn't know what to say. I just sat there in silence. He looked at me expectantly, waiting for me to say something.

Finally, I found my voice. I looked him in the eye and said, "Well, you're not my type either."

I got up and walked out of the coffee shop. I didn't look back.

I was so angry and upset. I couldn't believe that he would say something so hurtful to me. I felt like I was
