Entropy Theory: A Disturbing Revelation

During the investigation, Geling's personal journal was discovered, revealing her preoccupation with a disturbing concept known as "entropy theory." This theory posits that all systems tend to move towards disorder and chaos. Geling's writings suggested she was contemplating the futility of existence and the inevitability of death.

Suicide: A Troubling Possibility

Based on the contents of her journal, some investigators theorized that Geling had intentionally taken her own life. They pointed to her expressions of despair, her struggles with academic pressure, and her potential romantic letdowns. However, there were inconsistencies in the evidence that cast doubt on this hypothesis.

Accident: A Plausible Explanation

Others proposed that Geling's drowning may have been an unfortunate accident. They argued that she could have slipped into the water while walking along the lake shore or while attempting to retrieve a floating object. However, the lack of any witnesses or clear evidence of an accidental fall made this theory difficult to substantiate.

Foul Play: Rumors and Speculation

Whispers of foul play began to circulate, especially among the Chinese student population. Some believed that Geling may have been the victim of a hate crime or a sexual assault. Others suspected that she had been targeted by a secret society or a jealous rival. However, there was no credible evidence to support these rumors.

Unanswered Questions and Lingering Doubt

Despite the extensive investigation, the circumstances surrounding Geling Yan's drowning remain shrouded in mystery. The true cause of her death continues to be debated, with no definitive reached. The enigmatic nature of her demise has left a lasting legacy of unanswered questions and lingering doubt.
